

Pulling it all together

So now that we separated all of the areas that will be making up our site how do we pull it all together. All of the functions we have gone over already come in handy now.

Starting with the index.php

Remember that the `index.php` file is our end all file for our theme so it seems fit to start there. After the changes there we will copy over all the changes to the other needed files.

```
<?php get_header(); ?>
